

Dear colleague,

My name is Jennifer Brady and I am an Assistant Professor with Mount Saint Vincent University's Department of Applied Human Nutrition. I am conducting research on Canadian dietitians' understandings of and engagement in social justice advocacy and socially just dietetic practice.

This online survey will take less than 15 minutes to complete, and will ask you about your understandings, attitudes, and engagement in social justice advocacy and socially just dietetic practice.

Please access the survey via this

The results of this research will be used for scholarly publication and presentations, as well as other non-scholarly (i.e. summary reports for the dietitian community) publications. It is expected that this research will be useful in developing educational tools for dietetic students and practitioners in the future.

This survey is anonymous. Your identity will not be linked to the responses that you give to the questions on the survey. This means that you will not be identifiable based on your survey responses. This also means that it will not be possible for your answers to be withdrawn from the pool of data once you have submitted your responses.

By completing this survey and submitting your responses, you will be implying that you consent to having your responses included in the research data.

If you have any questions or concerns about this research, please contact me or Brenda Gagne, the Co-ordinator at Mount Saint Vincent University's Research Ethics Board using the contact information below.
